Personal History:

Skorzeny is 37 years of age; married; completed technical high school education; graduate engineer (p 2). He was a tradesman, "I had my trade"; resident of Vienna in 1939 (p 3)
MEMBERSHIP IN GERMAN MILITARY, PARA-MILITARY, POLITICAL ORGANIZATION:

NSDAP:
Joined the Party in 1936. Held no official position in the Party. (p 2)

Waffen SS:
Skorzeny volunteered in 1941 (p 2). He was assigned as a technical officer in an artillery regiment on the western front. Commissioned in 1941 (p 3).
1941 to January 1942 he served on the Jugoslavian and Russian Fronts with SS "Division Reich" (p 3).
January 1942 became ill and was sent to rear (p 4).
May 1942 to February 1943 served variously with Motorized Student Training Division; then transferred to 5th Panzer Regiment. (p 4)
February 1943 transferred to "Leading Chief Office, SS Officer's Reserve. (p 4)

FIGHTING BATTALIONS:
In May 1943 Skorzeny was made commander of Fighting Battalion 502 which in time was enlarged to include approximately six battalions. (p 7) These were all known as "fighting Battalions" or J.3.D. (pp 5-6) Their purpose was to carry out special missions, fulfill commando functions. (p 8) Apparently there were two echelons of command one relating to tactics the other to administration; on p 7 Skorzeny states that they were under the command of the Wehrmacht Leading Staff. (Jodl was the Chief and orders were given Skorzeny through the Wehrmacht Staff). Then there was the second chain of command, the SS, referred to on p 8: Skorzeny to Schellenberg to Kaltenbrunner to Himmler. In this connection Skorzeny testified that Schellenberg attended merely to administrative matters, Kaltenbrunner had no command function; Kaltenbrunner "had nothing to do with the Fighting Battalions", (p 9, 10) Nevertheless Skorzeny states that he made reports to Schellenberg who in turn "must have" transmitted the reports to Kaltenbrunner. (also on p 12 Skorzeny refers to orders received from Schellenberg re the transfer of some of Skorzeny's men to another unit which would seem to indicate Schellenberg had some command function.)

SABOTAGE SCHOOLS:
Concurrently with receiving command of the Fighting Battalion 502, Skorzeny became group leader of Section 65 (under the SS and Reich's Security Chief's Office), a group of schools for the purpose of teaching sabotage, foreign customs, and demolition work (p 5 and p 11). The emphasis was on training for duty in foreign countries. At this time Skorzeny held the rank of Captain. (p 6) The schools were located in the Hague, in Heidekrug, Belgium, and in Nustralitz. The schools were under direction of Brigade Leader Schellenberg (p 7):
Otto Skorzeny, 11 September 1945 FM

ACTIVITIES IN DENMARK:
Skorzeny admits that Section 4 started a resistance movement in Denmark in December 1943 or January 1944 (p 11), although the units in question were not under Skorzeny's command at the time (p 12). Orders regarding the matter came from Schellenberg. Skorzeny has no information regarding Kaltenbrunner's participation.

ACTIVITIES IN AUSTRIA:
On 5 April 1945 Skorzeny left Hof (upper Bavaria) to visit Easter J�d units; then to Vienna (J�d units southeast). 9-10 April 1945 Skorzeny went to Jaidhof in Krems. Then he received orders from Kaltenbrunner to return to the Office of Gauleiter Eigluber in Austria to set up a partol system for the apprehension of deserters from the eastern front in the vicinity of Linz (pp 12-13).

THE MUSSOLINI ACTION:
Re the kidnapping of the Duce, Skorzeny was ordered to report to Hitler by Schellenberg (p 8). Jodl was not present. Himmler was present during a portion of the interview.

KARL WOLFF
Karl Wolff was the highest SS and Police leader with Mussolini (p 14).
